

Mobix Labs: U.S. Navy Tomahawk Missile Component Demand Rises

March 3, 2026

IRVINE, Calif.--(BUSINESS WIRE)--Mar. 3, 2026-- Mobix Labs, Inc. (Nasdaq: MOBX) today issued a brief update following its earlier announcement of a production purchase order supporting the U.S. Navy's Tomahawk cruise missile program, emphasizing that the order reflects increased procurement associated with ongoing missile production.

The order supports near-term manufacturing schedules and increased volumes of Mobix Labs' high-reliability filtering component—an already-qualified, mission-essential part integrated into the established defense production supply chain.

Mobix Labs continues to support multiple active U.S. military platforms and remains focused on disciplined execution across defense and aerospace programs requiring production-ready, high-reliability components.
