Four Fighters Strong: Mobix Labs Expands Its Role on America's Frontline Jets

November 12, 2026

Components now support the F-16, F-22, F-35 and F/A-18, with new engine-system orders adding to the lineup

IRVINE, Calif.--(BUSINESS WIRE)--Nov. 12, 2026-- Mobix Labs, Inc. (Nasdaq: MOBX), a U.S.-based provider of mission-critical aerospace and defense electronics, today highlighted its expanding role on U.S. fighter aircraft. Mobix Labs components now support four frontline platforms: the F-16 Fighting Falcon, F-22 Raptor, F-35 Lightning II and F/A-18 Super Hornet.

Mobix Labs Secures Six-Figure F-Series Fighter and Wide-Body Aircraft Order!

The F-16 is the newest addition. In September, the Company secured its initial production order for EMI-filtered connectors supporting the aircraft. That order followed an approximately five-fold increase in component orders supporting the F-22 Raptor.

In November, Mobix Labs won new six-figure production orders from a tier-one global aerospace and defense supplier for engine-system components used across multiple U.S. fighter jet platforms and wide-body commercial aircraft. The custom connectors protect engine control and monitoring electronics from electromagnetic interference.

"Earning a place on one fighter program is hard. Supporting four says a great deal about the trust our customers place in our team and our technology," said Phil Sansone, Chief Executive Officer of Mobix Labs.
